They demand a unique image for their brand that no one has created before. This is the philosophy of Marmalade, a German production studio that is famous for capturing some of the most stunning, high-speed photography behind advertising. They create surreal images of the flow of milk chocolate colliding with dark chocolate in the air, or the perfect, effervescent beer hitting the frosty glass with all the force of the class five rapids of white water. Now, look, I know that this clip glorified the ad for their production services, but what an ad! It's like a wonderland for pictures of nerds, from their production room full of artificial cheeses, candy and fruit to their incredible industrial robot arm that tracks and pans shots as if it's building a performance car. You get a peek into the practical setup of some of the most advanced photography in the world. And before watching this clip? I'm ashamed to say I'd labeled about half the shots as CGI. See more here. (Hat tip: Smithsonian Institute) If you've ever sat around wondering what type of your fellow Americans fancy, today is your lucky day! Pornhub.com - one of the world's largest free sites - recently released quite a large amount of data, which lists three main search terms from each state. But before you start obsessing with the stats below, here are a few things worth noting: 1. When analyzing the top picks from each state, the two most popular search terms were teen and creampie. In fact, 31 of the 50 states were teenagers listed among their top three, while 29 of the 50 states were creamy in theirs. 2. Lesbian only popped up once in the results. (It was Arkansas No.2 search term.) The state that stayed included in Pornhub the longest was Mississippi (average visit duration: 11 minutes and 59 seconds), while Rhode Island was the shortest (10 minutes). 4. Some of these search terms are definitely sent to me by Google/Urban Dictionary looking for answers. So to save you from trouble: Hentai usually consists of Japanese anime and Anita is the star of adult movies. As for Wyoming's most popular search term, smoking? Well, I can only assume that the footage is related to cigarettes and sex. See the map below to see the number 1 of each state And if you're looking for a full report, check out Pornhub's interactive tools. (And yes, they're safe to work with, I promise!) Thoughts? The upcoming study, published in the Eastern Economic Journal, shows that the rise of internet is one of the factors influencing men to delay marriage longer than guys in previous generations did. Researchers interviewed men about their online habits and found that men who watched online were less likely to marry than those who kept a clean search history. In fact, take two guys with different identical demographics, and a fan has a 6 percent bigger shot to be one. We're not arguing that this is a major causal factor in reducing marriage rates, says study author Michael Malcolm, PhD. Other factors are probably much more important, says Malcolm, such as the fact that more men and women get higher education than in the past, and prefer to delay marriage until their training is done. (Time to take the plunge? see if you can move on from you're ready for marriage? checklist.) But what is the link anyway? One theory is that smut is a source of sexual gratification that does not require the time and effort of a relationship to do. This can make relationships less attractive to some men. The idea that optional sex can replace a relationship is not new, says Malcolm. Past research has shown that some men who hire prostitutes do so because it is easier than finding and caring for a partner. Watching online is much less risky, obviously. It is also free and anonymous-like perks for visiting a store. (Is your habit normal, or get out of control?
